"Hello Folks"

TORONTO, IOWA POLICE — that was a fine crowd you had — I surely was glad I was there — there is only one regret — the two gentlemen that appeared on the speaking platform and asked me to answer several questions about the Farmers Union, were, I supposed, friends of mine and asked those questions for real information — I treated them as gentlemen and answered their questions — I am now told that they did not come there to ask those questions in a friendly spirit but went to Toronto and layed around most of the afternoon waiting for me to arrive — laying for me in order that they could pester me with the questions — with the hope of "flooding my arguments and talk" — they didn't succeed however — I am sorry they forced me to answer their questions — because it made me speak of personal things that heretofore I have not "aired" in public — they were the truths however — but I would never have answered them had not they requested the answer — I feel that they now know that matters would have been better for their cause if they had not asked me to answer — I am now told that certain ones held a meeting down in Bennett, Iowa, the day before and it was all planned there to ask those questions during my address in Toronto — I don't believe they meant anything friendly outside of trying to make me appear ridiculous — this belief is strengthened because of some DIRT TALKING that was tried — I am told that the second man who appeared, who prompted the first man, after he asked the first question of me — that he went to the trouble to find a drunken man, brought him back to the stand with the idea of causing trouble — gentlemen you can't win that way — if you have public questions don't be afraid to clean your linen in public — it's the best laundry — and if you do not believe that the Baker plan is the best for farmers — the SINGLE UNIT FARM ORGANIZATION — get your leaders and let's debate it — you have worked about 14 years for the farmers and all you have to show them today is wheat at 25c per bushel — think it over and get out of what you are in and into something that will do the trick quickly — had I known about the effort of the one man to cause a drunken disturbance, my answer would have been even a greater expose of those I mentioned and others.

MANCHESTER EDITOR — he sure is raring again — poor fellow — he just does not know what to do — I printed a challenge to meet him in public discussion of affairs he wrote and LIED ABOUT — not a murmur out of him — he knows better — I wish I knew some way to coax him into a public discussion — some of you folks that read him — write and tell him to do it — write a communication for his paper — MAYBE HE WILL PRINT IT — maybe he won't — he's mad still about that crowd at Backbone park near him — just too bad — he ought to read both sides of public questions and things that are forced upon the farmer — then he would print the truth — have not seen his paper — but I bet he printed the "GUNK" — Dr. Mayo sent out about T. B. testing of farmers' cattle — bet he did not or will not print anything from you farm subscribers of his against the present stealing of cattle for packers by compulsion. The town with a fearless editor is lucky — Manchester does not have it.

JUST FACTS — we wonder why this depression — there's a reason — farmer's can't get any price for their stuff and can't buy things — think of it — in 1931 estimate shows that gross income of domestic farmers was $7,000,000,000 — a decline of 25.8 per cent under last year. This is according to the department of agriculture's report — It is 40.9 per cent less than 1929 — what will it be next year if they keep listening to farm boards and departments of agriculture and some farm organizations?

2,000 CHILDREN hurt every year in N. Y. factories — then they wonder why we have 6,000,000 unemployed in America today — why not put the kiddies back in school — and let mamma and papa do the work — would be better all around.

Upon the first ballot this morning, the Rev. George Blagg, pastor of the First church of Oskaloosa, was named a delegate to the general conference to be held in Atlantic City by the Iowa annual conference of the Methodist church. The Rev. Other delegates elected by the ministers at the adjourned session this afternoon in the First Presbyterian church are as follows:

The Rev. P. M. Conant, of the Santa Fe Methodist church, Fort Madison, who was elected on the third ballot, and the Rev. E. A. ## GANDHI LOSES IN A BATTLE ON PASSAGE

Indian Leader Forced To Ride First Class On Rail Train

MARSEILLES, France. — (INS) — The stubborn simplicity of Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, India Nationalist leader, clashed head-on with the immobility of European government bureaucracy today, and simplicity was defeated. Gandhi, who had insisted that he would travel from Marseilles to London only in a third-class railway carriage, as befitting the leader of India's teeming, starving millions, was compelled to ride first class when he boarded the special boat train at 4 p. m. after the railway officials had refused to provide a third-class carriage on the train.

At first it had been proposed that a special third-class carriage be attached to the train, out of deference to Gandhi's wishes, but at the last moment the railway officials refused to do this. Gandhi, smiling even in defeat, took his seat in a first class coach without further protest.

2,500 Farmers Ask Turner To Aid in Corn Price Hike
Is Only Salvation for Iowa Farmer, Governor Told

DES MOINES. — (INS) — About 2,500 farmers, representing about fifty counties in the state gathered today at State Capital to discuss plans for raising the price of corn as a measure of salvation for the Iowa farmer. Despite the fact that Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, was in Des Moines and undoubtedly interested in the outcome of the meeting, Governor Dan Turner did not expect Capper to attend the session.

State Secretary of Agriculture, Mark Thornburg, was expected to present to the meeting, the plan of the farm warehouse act providing the storage of grain in the farmers' own bins and yet being able to borrow funds on this crop. "Many of the farmers are not familiar with this act which provides for this protection. All that is necessary to put the act in force is the setting up of the machinery which is now available. The secretary of agriculture is to appoint warehouse boards in each locality, some of which have already been named. Through these boards, sealers are appointed whose duties consist of inspecting and sealing the bins of corn which the farmers wish to store. The warehouse receipts, issued by the sealer may be used for collateral.

LINDBERGH SET FOR CHINA HOP

Undecided On Route For Flight Back To America

BY JAMES R. YOUNG
TOKYO. — (INS) — Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has not decided definitely what route he and Mrs. Lindbergh will follow on their return flight from China to the United States, but he has decided definitely it will not be the northern or Siberian route, he said today in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"The Siberian route is inadvisable in the winter time with a plane not equipped with wheels or skis," Colonel Lindbergh said. "Really, we can not determine until our visit to China has been completed which route we will take. The interview was granted on the eve of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh's start for China, following the Colonel's final inspection of their Lockheed-Vega monoplane which has now been thoroughly reconditioned. The plane has been expertly overhauled and revarnished," Colonel Lindbergh said. "These Japanese workmen are surprisingly efficient."

"We plan to leave Kasumigaura airfield at 1 p. m. Saturday (12 midnight Friday, eastern daylight time) and hope to reach Osaka in three hours flying time. We are anxious to get to Shanghai to determine our future course, which will be one of three: across the Pacific by way of Honolulu; across Europe and the Atlantic, by way of the Azores, or across Europe and home by way of the South Atlantic. "We don't know what date we will arrive back in the United States our return route has not been determined."

ARMS HOLIDAY IS OKED IN A RESOLUTION

Five Small European Nations in Favor Of Movement

GENEVA. — (INS) — A formal resolution in favor of an armament holiday was presented to the assembly of the League of Nations today by five of the smaller nations of Europe. The resolution, following closely on the lines of the proposal made by Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, read as follows: "With the view of obtaining positive results in the interests of a gradual reduction in arms, we beg the council of the League of Nations to invite the powers to abstain from any increase in existing armaments until the end of the disarmament conference in February."

The resolution was proposed by the delegates from Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden. M. Titulesco, president of the council, referred the resolution to a committee. Members of the committee representing the great powers were expected to oppose the resolution on the ground that construction of armaments provides work when it is sorely needed.

Take Wife Away and Criminally Attack Her, Is Report

By CHARLES J. MCGUIRK
NEW YORK. — (INS) — Police of two states swept Long Island sound today in a gigantic man hunt for Benjamin P. Collings of Stamford, Connecticut, believed murdered aboard his cruiser, Penguin, Wednesday night.

At sun-up this morning members of the United States life station at Hell Gate picked up the Oh Boy, a 35-foot cabin cruiser with lines similar to the ill-fated Penguin. She was drifting abandoned. Aboard her was found a woman's kimono and dress of excellent quality. The license number of the yacht is K-3649 and her owner is registered as Charles Benhart, of New York.

Police immediately added it to the cloud of clues which are piling up to becloud the solution of this horrible mystery which began when Collings' yacht was boarded by two pirates who threw him overboard, took his wife Lillian, away in a small boat and criminally attacked her, and left his five-year-old daughter, Barbara drifting with the pirated Penguin through the night.

While Nassau county police prepared to take the clothing to Mrs. Collings for identification, news was flashed here of the mysterious disappearance of Herman P. Chellus, 78, former director of the Boston Conservatory of Music and father of Mrs. Collings. Chellus disappeared from hotel at Black Island, R. I., ten days ago where he was spending his vacation. He left without communicating with his two sisters, Rose E. and Helen Chellus of Dorchester, Mass. Thursday they asked the police to search for him. The old man is reported to have said he was "catching a boat for New London" but no trace of him has been found in that city.

Sibley Institution Is Robbed About 10:30 This Morning

SIBLEY, Ia. — (INS) — Three young men today held up and robbed the First National bank here of $2,000 and escaped in an automobile.

The robbery occurred about 10:30 this morning. Only a very brief description of the bandits was secured by police. J. Fred Mattert, president of the institution and two tellers, George Bauman and Charles Ramsey were in the bank when the bandits walked in with guns drawn.

Order Hands Up
They ordered the three bank officials to throw up their hands. After scooping up the cash in the till the bandits herded the men into the vault where they ordered them to open the safe. Mattert told the men that the safe was locked with a time lock and that it was impossible to open it. The bandits were not satisfied with the explanation, however, and after again demanding that the safe be opened struck the bank officials over the head with the butts of their guns.

Men Flee In Car
When convinced the safe could not be opened the men fled in a new model black Dodge sedan, leaving the car bore a Minnesota license plate issued from division B. None of the bank employees was injured seriously by the blows struck by the bandits. Vigilantes were notified and a search begun immediately. Mattert said he and his two tellers were too nervous to obtain a good description of the bandits except to note that they were young, about 20 years of age, dressed in civilian clothes. The men were not mugged, he said. Officials notified the state bureau of investigation at Des Moines. James Bladen, chief, immediately dispatched a man to the scene of the robbery.

BLUEBEARD'S FATHER FOUND

Has Not Been Told of Predicament That His Son Is In

FAIRBANK, Ia. — (INS) — Wilko Drenth, father of Harm Drenth who under the alias of Harry Powers murdered five persons in the West Virginia, is unaware of his son's predicament, it was learned here today. In fact, for ten years Wilko Drenth has believed his son to be dead, drowned while on a ship en route to South America. This information was gained here today when Harm Drenth's brother-in-law, Everet Schroeder, (Ct.), was found living on a farm near here with the father.

"My wife and I first learned of Harm's whereabouts last night when we read an International News Service report that Harry Powers was Harm," Schroeder said today. "Don't tell him." He explained that Wilko today was playing on a farm some distance away from here. "Harm was a bad actor," Everet declared.

"Why, even when he came to this country, it was because his father had so much trouble with him in Holland he couldn't control him. "Harm used to steal whiskey from his dad and get drunk with the hired hands. That was why he was sent to America." The place where Harm Drenth's father is living with his son-in-law was found today after a lengthy search. Their farm, now rented by Schroeder, is located between this town and Orono, Ia., a town to which Wilko returned from Michigan about a year ago.

REV. G. BLAGG NAMED LEADER OF DELEGATES Permanent Committee Named by Laymen This Morning

Ministerial group opened with reports of the Wesley foundation and the board of education of the Methodist Episcopal church. Both reports, which showed a healthy condition of the organizations and a rapid growth of both, were accepted by the conference. The ministers are holding their conference in the First Methodist church, 1000 N. 1st St., at the laymen's conference, which is being held in the First Presbyterian church, a credentials committee consisting of R. J. Raney of Columbus, representing the Burlington district; Clayton F. Smith, of Ottumwa, representing the Ottumwa district; and J. R. Dwyer, of Knoxville, representing the Ottumwa district, was named.

To Nominating Delegates
Following the selection of the credentials committee the conference adjourned for a short time to allow the committee to look over the credentials and also to allow the districts to meet and nominate a delegate from each one.

At the minister's conference this morning Bishop F. D. Lee, of the Omaha area, presiding bishop of the conference opened the meeting. The laymen's conference was opened by Dean Taylor, of Fairfield, president of the association, and George S. Davis, of Chicago, gave a talk on "The World Outlook."

Dr. Davis told of the changes being wrought in the economic situation of the various countries and how the church was spreading out to all the foreign countries. Admission of undergraduates to conference membership was also a part of this morning's business, which came before the minister's meeting.

Laymen Name Officers
Dean Taylor, of Fairfield, was re-elected president of the Iowa Laymen's conference at the session of the organization Thursday afternoon. Other officers are as follows: J. E. Latta, Morning Sun, vice-president; John Ballin, Sioux City, vice-president; Harold Judd, Ottumwa, vice-president; A. J. Wood, Muscatine, vice-president; J. H. Kent, Lone Tree, secretary and treasurer.

Officers of the Laymen's brotherhood are: George E. Wahl, of Burlington, president; and Allen W. Weir, of Columbus Junction, secretary and treasurer.

What effect the merging of the Iowa and Des Moines conference will have upon the laymen's organization has not yet been indicated. Although it is expected there will be some merging of the laymen's associations, the fact that the Iowa group has elected officers for the coming year would indicate that it will at least be some kind of an organization maintained by the Iowa group.

Evangelical Clinic Held
Thursday afternoon the laymen and ministers united for a joint session on evangelism. The session was presided over by A. A. Heath. Talks were given by Dr. J. J. Willis, a former member of the Iowa conference, but who is now stationed at Holland, Mich., and Bishop Frederick D. Lee, of the Omaha area, presiding bishop of the conference. Both speakers urged a revival of evangelism. Various ministers present also told of their experiences in this line of work.

At the evening program Wednesday, following music by the choir of the Delta Methodist Episcopal church, Dr. Douglas Macintosh, professor at Yale university and Dr. George S. Connell, of the board of home missions, Philadelphia, were the speakers.

Dr. Macintosh spoke on the subject, "There May Be a God." His talk was along the lines of logical reasoning which tended to show the existence of a creator of the universe.

The speaker declared there were two ways of approaching the religious question—one by the method of accepting all teachings and then discarding those for which no excuse could be found for their retention and the other was to carefully examine each fact before it was accepted. Both methods have advantages, he said, but in his talk he seemed to favor the method of accepting only that fact which appeared reasonable.

"What may we reasonably expect of God?" the speaker questioned. "Science says there must have been a maker of heaven and earth, and may that maker have been God?" he continued.

"If we consider the scientific facts," Dr. Macintosh said, "it appears there is no room for God in the universe. The cause is at least equal to the effect and since man is an intelligent creature, capable of reasoning, God must be intelligent."

Mankind Being Driven
The speaker declared that in this world there is something which drives mankind towards the right. Those who are wise learn early in life that unless their actions and thoughts are right they will be punished in one form or another. Dr. Macintosh said. He raised the question of what, if not God, was driving humans towards the right. "God may be a father," the speaker continued, "but not an indulgent father of molly-coddles. When a man is good, good comes to him but when he is evil his lot is evil." Dr. Macintosh said.

Following the professor's talk Dr. George S. Connell, of the board of home missions, Philadelphia, talked regarding the every-member canvasses of the church. He said he hoped to see the day when an every-citizen canvass would be held.

Churches Not Efficient
The speaker declared that it was his opinion the average every-member canvass of the church is not more than 60 per cent efficient. This fact, he said, was because the workers did not take the proper attitude. Dr. Connell said that everyone who lives in a community in

OVATION GIVEN BAKER AT OLLIE

Muscatine Publisher Is
Speaker at M. W. A.
Lodge Outing

OLLIE, Ia.—(Special).—Before an enthusiastic crowd of 2,000 people gathered at the city park Thursday afternoon, Norman Baker, Muscatine publisher and crusader for the rights of the farmer and laborer, was given a huge ovation when he spoke in favor of adoption by the farmer of a one-unit plan of farm organization and relief.

The occasion was the first annual picnic of the Modern Woodmen of America camp at Ollie, which organization was eulogized by the speaker. Jake Lenker, the "Fighting Dutchman" of Cedar county, spoke prior to Mr. Baker, and related some of the difficulties that Cedar county farmers have encountered in resisting the T. B. tests.

The speaker stated that courage among the farmers of Cedar county, has caused them to be recognized all over the United States, and that letters of encouragement are being received daily by the protective association, commending them upon their stand against the T. B. cattle test.

A thunderous ovation by his admirers, many of who came from great distances to hear the crusader for the farmers deliver his address, greeted the speaker upon introduction. Cries of "Baker for Governor" were heard throughout the entire crowd, and it was fully a minute before the speaker could proceed with his talk.

Problems of the farmers in general were among the high lights of Mr. Baker's talk. The speaker enumerated many things of interest that have inspired during the 40 years of entrenchment of political powers in the capital at Des Moines and which, he said, have held no interest in the welfare of the farmer and the laboring man.

Mr. Baker reiterated former statements that much could be done by the farmers with a united stand under one banner, and under the leadership of fearless, courageous men. He still "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, governor of Oklahoma, who within a period of 30 days, brought the price of oil from 10 cents a barrel up to $1. The speaker said the farmers could do the same with the price of wheat, corn and other farm commodities, and that the farmer can expect no relief until the time comes that they are united as one.

This alone, he said, will bring back prosperity to the farmer. Mr. Baker cited that careful selection should be made of the candidates who would seek the favor of the farmer in 1932, and warned his listeners that in making their selection, they should be sure that the candidates stood for equality and justice.

The speaker stated that during the past five years, he had fought against an invasion of the capitalistic group, he said, and that he prophesied many of the things that have occurred recently. Mr. Baker said he held no malice toward any organization composed of farmers and laboring men, but that in his opinion, one organized group would be more powerful in the matter of securing proper legislation for farmers' relief, than by having four or five different organizations fighting for different things.

Denies Hospital Closed
Mr. Baker told of the unfair tactics being used by various newspapers and other enemies who are claiming the Baker hospital has been closed. He said that the hospital has been closed, but that the statement that the Baker hospital has been closed, and is always open.

In conclusion, the speaker let it be known that in 1932, the farmers should unite in their selection of men for political offices. Mr. Baker said that although he had no political aspirations, if the time should come when the farmers, the laborer and the common people are to choose him as their leader, he would be ready to serve them in any capacity that would be of benefit.

Mr. Baker added that if elected as governor, he would administer the duties of the office according to his oath, and at all times be faithful to the trust imposed in him. Applause followed this statement that if chosen for the office, he would endeavor to give a clean-cut economic administration.

Efforts to Set Up
A New Radio Chain
Close in Failure

WASHINGTON.—(INS).—Efforts of C. R. Cummings of Williamsport, Pa., to set up a net-work of local broadcasting stations in sixteen states received a set-back today when the federal radio commission dismissed his application for authority to use 25 channels.

This action was taken because of the failure of Cummings to enter an official appearance within the time specified in commission's regulations with regard to the hearing. Cummings' hearing has been set for October 16.

AROUND THE CORNER

Building permits have been issued from the office of H. H. Fitzgerald, city engineer, to Joseph Nymhus to reshingle the roof of his residence on Lucas street between Logan and Eighth streets, at an approximate cost of $75 and to H. W. Paul for the erection of a frame dwelling on First avenue between Jackson and Monroe streets, to cost about $1,000.

Miss Stella Freese of the Uptown Apartments, and Mrs. Betty Shifflet and Miss Bernadine Lange of the Hotel Muscatine, will leave Monday for a women's vacation trip by automobile to the Black Hills. They will return by way of Cheyenne, Wyo., and Denver, Colo.

New automobile registrations on Thursday included the following: C. R. Musser, 515 West Second street, two Buick coupes; John McCullough, Fairport, Ford tudor sedan; J. Mittman and Sons, rural route No. 6, Chevrolet truck.

Miss Elizabeth Armstrong, county home demonstration agent, sent out a letter to the township of Muscatine at the home of Mrs. Harold Butcher to organize the township group for farm project work.

A. R. Howe, 608 West Second street, C. E. Gabriel, 406 East Sixth street and Fred R. Mooney, 1408 Cedar street, have returned from recently in Chicago where they witnessed a double-header ball game.

Officers of the newly formed Muscatine rifle club have been elected. C. R. Musser, president; H. H. Fitzgerald, vice-president; Dr. H. B. Guthrie, secretary; Henry Truninger, treasurer; Capt. Guy

At a meeting at the high school Thursday afternoon tickets for the moonlight excursion out of Muscatine next Thursday night were given to local De Molay members to sell.

The hearing of Chester A. Olson, charged with larceny of merchandise valued at less than $10, was continued Thursday afternoon by Justice C. C. Coster until Sept. 14, at 9 a. m.

The county board of supervisors will convene on Monday morning in regular session. Only routine business is scheduled.

Ray Crabb and Charles Fitch, fourth state automobile inspectors, stopped in Muscatine today while enroute to other parts of the state.

On one score—immediate payment of the remaining two billion dollars due on the bonus—the president and his supporters in congress were preparing for a bitter fight.

On another—the Legion's action in assembling a national unemployment conference here next Monday—the White House was non-committal, but from surface appearances the administration was puzzled.

There is every indication the veterans will present a united front next December in demanding instant liquidation of the bonus. The Veterans of Foreign Wars already have adopted such a plank, despite administration pleadings and it seems probable the American Legion will do likewise when it meets in annual convention at Detroit on the 21st.

President Hoover has taken the position this would constitute an unjustifiable raid on the treasury.

The raid upon Miller's place was made at about 3:30 o'clock. The officers reported finding a quantity of whiskey, alcohol and hooch. The case, it is understood, will be investigated by the grand jury which is now in session.

PUBLISHER TO ASK JUDGMENT BE SET ASIDE

Norman Baker Refuses to Pay for Poor
Grade of Paper

The Progressive Publishing company, publisher of the Midwest Free Press, today moved to have set aside the judgment rendered by default against it Thursday in favor of E. W. Backus, et al, receivers of the Minneapolis & Ontario Paper Co. The judgment was obtained through a misunderstanding on the part of the defendant as to what proceedings had been taken in the matter. The defendant had instructed Attorney C. P. Hanley to appear for it, through its managing editor, W. D. Randall, but due to a misunderstanding between Mr. Hanley and Mr. Randall, the matter was not given attention on the opening day of the term.

The suit grew out of the refusal of the publisher of the Free Press to pay for the dirty yellow paper which it was forced to issue its paper during the first two months of its existence, the quality and color of the paper sent by the Minnesota & Ontario Paper Co., being well remembered by Free Press readers. The paper ordered was a blue-white paper of good quality and the paper received was of a miserable quality, which tore easily and was so dark in color as to be almost unreadable. Our readers will remember the paper used in our first edition.

As the result of the inferior kind of paper supplied by the paper company, the Free Press suffered thousands of dollars damage by loss of subscribers, nearly 1,500 of those who had subscribed canceling their subscriptions, due to the paper, during the months of December and January.

Because of this fact, and for no other, President Norman Baker of the Progressive Publishing company has refused to pay the balance of the account, feeling that it was an injustice to the stockholders of the company to do so.

The condition of Nick Knapton, proprietor of the McKenzie Cleaners, and Albert Burr, tailor for the concern, who were badly burned Thursday morning when naptha exploded in the company's cleaning plant at 304 East Fourth street, was slightly improved today. Burr suffered the worst burns and was probably be laid up for some time, according to attending physicians. Fred Christian, driver, who was also burned about the arms, was able to resume his work shortly after the fire.

The amount of damage to the cleaning shop and to clothing which was destroyed by fire, had not been determined today. Business at the plant is being continued as usual, but as yet no repairs have been made to that part of the shop that suffered damage from the flames.

JOULET, Ill.—(INS).—Furtherance of the campaign against gun-toting will be discussed at the new stateville penitentiary tomorrow by the special legislative committee on prison investigation.

"There are only 350,000,000 of corn right now. Eighty to ninety millions only are available for the market. A great amount of money is not necessary to provide relief for those who are in need."

"The farmers cannot afford to hold their grain unless the price is advanced. Corn differs from wheat, cotton, and oil. A moratorium is out of the question."

"If the price of corn rises, the price of livestock will follow, is my prediction," the secretary informed International News Service.

Today's conference is the result of a meeting of Jasper county farmers who a week ago asked the governor to meet with them. Many other counties, seeking relief, decided to send representatives to the meeting.

The Newton committee consisting of William H. Brock, chairman, Ralph Smith, and J. R. Rhodes, were to take charge of the meeting which was held on the plaza on the east side of the court house due to the large number of representatives. Loud speakers were to carry the voices of the speakers.

A definite plan was not expected to be agreed upon although Governor Turner, cooperating with the farmers was expected to offer suggestions along with Secretary Thornburg.

The governor met with Thornburg, Charles H. Hart, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, before the mass meeting. At this time he instructed Thornburg to be ready to explain the warehouse act.

Farmers crowded the state house and in small groups discussed the low price of grain. With corn quoted at 30 to 40 cents, wheat at 37, and oats selling from 13 to 15, the Iowa land owners seemed disgusted with conditions.

Moratorium proposals, similar to the action of "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, with the oil industry, were expected to be brought up at the meeting. However, such action was not expected to be recommended to the governor. Since there are a great number of states are corn producing states and such a plan would be practically impossible.

Winter Colors To be Quaintly Old-Fashioned

PARIS (INS)—Colors will be quaint this winter copying cuts and curves of the new fashions.

There is a lovely old-fashioned violet of a new tone and several darker purple shades used to make entire gowns or trimming ensembles and coats.

Maurice has launched a new color in several different shades, a mauve-purple which comes in youthful-looking wool suits, as well as evening gowns. One in two shades of orchid has the frock of a lighter tone than the short satin coat bordered in gray fur. Another lovely evening gown comes in white and purple georgette, the purple being used for the lower half of the skirt and the flowing part of the sleeves. Violet lace and tulle are combined in another quaint model.

A Peruvian red that borders on burnt orange or brick is making a dash for color for winter wear. Combined with violet it makes a dashing lace evening gown of the large flower pattern mesh with a shoulder bouquet of dull red silk flowers on the removable long-sleeved jacket.

Red velvet makes a quaint jacket-ensemble with a silk and wool frock hinting of the romantic Louis XV period. There is a rippling pleum of the velvet at sides and back and a jabot and pleated ruffles of white net.

Plum-brown, turquoise and rosy-beige are other quaint shades in the winter spectrum.

This summer's attendance exceeded that of 1930, the previous best year, by 4093. The 1931 total is all the more impressive when it is taken into consideration that eighty-five performances were given last year, as compared with eighty-three this year.

DARE INTERPRETS the MODE

Stunning Autumn coat of green fantasy wool with unusual collar and cuffs of black caracul. (Courtesy of The Maison Redfern, Paris.)

WELL-I-L-I, here we are in the Casino at Deauville. What fur? Well, for Heaven's sake—fur 'n' fur! For all the lovely ladies are furred all over the place—LOOK at that GORGEOUS ashy blonde over there with a black tulle dress on, banded, think of it, all around the hem and around the edge of the two wide sleeves that go only from wrist to elbow, in SILVER FOX! That's too delightful—that contrast between the fragility of tulle and the weight of fox fur!

I'd like to know where hard times are, anyhow! There isn't an elegant here without a thousand dollars worth of fur on her, honestly. Of course, fur is much cheaper than it has ever been, but does that mean anything when you wear three or four foxes now instead of one?

"Surely, I'll be right back! I HAVE to get a closer look at that silvery looking fur cape over there—where here I can't tell what it is, except that it's NOT chinchilla or mink, and there isn't any other grey fur that I know of. Oh, yes, what do you think. It's platinum dyed ermine!"

Monsieur Helm told me that this last year—he said that platinum dyed ermine was going to be more expensive than even the priceless chinchilla, for the good reason that only the finest and youngest ermine skins could be dyed this pearl grey, also that only one out of three or four skins came out right, and the rest had to be thrown away! Consequently a platinum dyed ermine coat costs four times what the finest ermine coat would cost! And there I see one! And it's too lovely for words—it looks just like moonlight, really!"

AUTUMN coats are arousing enthusiasm in lovely ladies who formerly looked on a coat as a boring necessity, to be worn only when cold weather made going about in a dress or light suit impossible! But who could resist the colorful KNITTED FROCK The first fall days make a wool frock a necessity, and a happy choice for cool weather consists of a dress of knitted wool in a mixture of red and white. Appliqued waist and circular skirt, and a trim little red broadcloth coat completes the picture.

(Copyright by Public Ledger)

SYNOPSIS
PHYLLIS WOOD comes from California to New York to study music, and on her arrival is persuaded to assume the role of SLAVIN, MARJORIE FENTLAND, who has disappeared from college and is heiress to the millions of her grandfather.
SLAVIN FENTLAND. Phyllis is taken in charge by MRS. NAOMI HATTON, who is responsible for her social success. She has a French maid, MARIE, and a social secretary, LETTIE GILMORE. Among the friends she makes are KAY WOLFE and ADELE ROGERS, young society girls; COUNT THEODORE SLAVIN, a member of the deposed Russian nobility; BEN HAMILTON, a sophomore at Yale; GRANBY FELLOWS, a young lawyer in love with Kay, and JOHN GAGE, who had been her companion on the way East. Count Slavin takes Phyllis to the studio of M. Rosoff, a music instructor, and she arranges to take vocal lessons from him.

CHAPTER XII
T-LE-A-TE
TAT afternoon in M. Rosoff's studio was the beginning of a warm friendship between Phyllis and Count Slavin. It was arranged that she should have three lessons a week, and at each lesson Slavin was present, coming in generally just before the instruction period was completed and remaining for tea. At his request, she began to call him "Theodore."

"Not the 'Teddy' your young friends have wished on me. I do not like that, but Theodore is a noble name, a beautiful name, and it gives me pleasure to hear you say it, Miss Majorie."

"We'll make it a bargain, then," she said gayly. "You will drop the 'Miss' and call me Majorie, and I will call you Theodore."

"Good—we shake hands on it, American fashion?" He held out his hand for hers, holding it a moment as he turned it palm upward to study it. "A good little hand," he murmured, "truthful and honest, and not vain. And here—what is this—crossed by fate—look, the fate of a woman's hand in a most surprising fashion—suggesting some mystery."

Phyllis withdrew her hand hastily and managed a laugh. "There isn't any mystery, I'm sure," she said, "my life is an open book."

Slavin shrugged. "But you do not want me to read it," he said shrewdly, looking keenly at her. Phyllis joined the heart line in a most pleasant close to scenting something unusual about her position. But he did not refer to it again, to her relief, and she was gradually drawn closer and closer into an intimate friendship with him. She liked him, and she respected, too, the scrupulous way in which he regarded her, and she was gradually drawn closer and closer into an intimate friendship with him.

Phyllis brought me some just after I came in. I wished you were here to pour it for me." Phyllis' heart beat faster at the smiling, grave look he bent on her. "I wish I had been," she cried, real regret in her voice. "Since you weren't, you'll let me stay and talk a bit to make up for it, won't you?"

"Of course I will; but I'm not a pleasant lessons one afternoon about the first of December to be met in the foyer by Wilkins, the butler.

"There is a caller for you, Miss Majorie," he said.

"For me—who is it?"

"Mr. John Gage. He came half an hour ago and I took the liberty, since Mrs. Hatton is out, of asking him to wait. He is in the living room."

"Tell him I'll be down in just a few minutes," Phyllis instructed, and flew to her room, where she called impatiently for Marie. She wished she had worn something smarter than the street suit for her lesson, but there would be time to change if she hurried.

"Marie, Marie, lay out that blue velvet afternoon dress with the cream lace gilet and cuffs, while I'm freshening my face, will you please? I have a caller and want to change quickly."

"Surely, Miss Majorie. I fly," Phyllis and Marie both "flew" to good purpose and ten minutes later Phyllis looked at her reflection in the mirror with satisfaction. It showed her a tall, slim, golden-haired girl in a blue velvet dress, softened and given a slender dignity by deep cuffs of lace, and lace about the throat. Her legs and feet gleamed in their sheer black silk stockings and patent leather opera pumps with cut steel buckles and high heels.

"Tres distingue," Marie murmured. Then she looked at her young mistress with a twinkle in her bright eyes. Mademoiselle wishes to please? She will hardly fail."

Phyllis went down to the living room, wondering how much of her life was hidden from Marie, and deciding that very little indeed escaped those sharp brown eyes. Gage rose from the davenport in front of the fireplace.

"How do you do?" he said cordially, extending his hand.

She let her hands fall into her lap for a moment, and then reached less, as though to forget the pictures conjured up from memory by the old tune and words, she began to play jazz, humming the silly, lulling words and smiling at him over her shoulder.

"Oh, it ain't no sin, to take off your skin, and dance around in your bones." It was on his lips, John Gage, sunk in the depths of the davenport listening, Phyllis singing and playing to him, that the startled Mrs. Hatton entered. Gage gave an exclamation as she came in. His jump to his feet, Phyllis brought a final chord and whirled around. Mrs. Hatton snapped on the lights. It seemed to Phyllis that a brief moment her eyes asked some question of Gage, asked and received an instructive answer. She moved forward into the room.

"Giving a good time," she asked lightly.

"Splendid, Miss Fentland's been singing for me."

"Will you stay and take dinner with us? I didn't mean to interrupt."

Phyllis listened eagerly for his answer and was unreasonably disappointed when it came. "I'm sorry," he said in his deep voice. "I have another engagement."

Hoover's Relief Plan

The plan of President Hoover to organize relief work in the country on a large scale before winter is attracting considerable comment throughout the country. It has found many critics and quite a few supporters. It would seem that Mr. Hoover's war time record should qualify him to work out something feasible. The question, of course, is, will he be permitted to do it?

As nearly as can be guessed at this time, the scheme seems to be for the committee headed by Mr. Gifford to solicit funds from the rich through the country and mobilize resources. It has also been suggested that the wheat held by the farm board should be used for distribution among the hungry.

Whether the wholesale charity plan will be acceptable to self-respecting men and women unable to find employment may be quite another matter. We have a feeling that the people are going to demand jobs—not charity.

What congress is going to have to say on the subject will be an important element entering into any plans Mr. Hoover or anyone else may make. Reports from Washington indicate that senators and representatives are drifting back to the capitol from summers spent among their constituents, and are bringing back tales of distress.

This may be expected to result in a flock of relief bills. It is generally believed that more freak plans for relief will be introduced in the coming session than anyone has ever dreamed of. Congress will probably be asked to enact emergency laws which will put an enormous drain on the treasury.

It is considered likely that this very fact had much to do with the refusal of the president to convene congress in special session. Washington correspondents hint that there is a feeling the country is more likely to work out a relief plan without the aid (or interference if you choose) of congress.

If charity is to be necessary this winter, the feeling persists that Mr. Hoover's war time experience may stand the country in good stead. On the other hand, if congress is allowed to dally with a dozen different schemes, it is quite likely that those in dire need will not receive benefits in time to do them any good.

Liberal-hearted America has always been willing to give when the necessity was pressing and the president's committee is reported to be finding out that funds can be secured.

Russia Wants Gold

As, little by little, real facts seep through the censorship on Russian information, the impression becomes stronger that the soviets are not being operated by fools.

With world commodity prices deflated to the lowest levels in years, Russia has been forced to sell much needed products at prices which do not show a profit. The necessity for thus offering goods which are needed at home comes from the pressing need for gold.

Russia has man power beyond the conception of the ordinary citizen. The teeming millions of communists, inspired with a dream of accomplishment, are producing as no other nation has ever produced, everything considered.

But Russia needs gold and, to get that gold, must exchange products she badly needs at home. Russia needs gold in order to purchase other things of which she stands in need.

In order to get gold without exchanging commodities for it, the only other recourse is to dig it from the ground. Russia's mineral resources have never been exploited in the same manner that the mineral resources of other countries have been worked.

There is probably no other civilized country which has not thoroughly surveyed its possessions and prospected for metals. The soviets, therefore, are doing the obvious thing, searching for the needed gold at home.

The latest authentic reports show that Russia is spending the tidy little sum of 40 millions on geological surveys and is reaping immense benefits. Not only gold but other minerals are being sought and when Russia finds them, her position is going to be immeasurably strengthened.

A sizeable production of gold within her borders will give Russia a position in the world which will be commanding. Considerable gold has been discovered and is being produced but not in sufficient quantities, as yet, to enable Russia to retain domestically-needed products. She still must sell at low prices.

Eating Fresh Air

If figures recently compiled by a leading magazine devoted to business may be taken as authentic, the American people have decided to eat fresh air.

The figures tell the story of what becomes of that elusive article known to economists as the "consumer's dollar." These gentlemen, whom we always picture as having exceptionally high foreheads and a handful of lead-pencils, the gentlemen who compile the miles of statistics with which we are supplied, say the "consumer's dollar" is no longer used in the same proportions as formerly.

There was a time when food was the item which took the biggest percentage of the dollars spent by the 120 millions of citizens, but now food is no longer the dominant industry, again according to the "figgers."

Silly—but so, the automotive industry is getting a bigger slice of Mr. Average American's pay check than the food business. The automobile business, in all its branches, takes 21.80 per cent of the dollar while the slice devoted to purchasing food is but 20.60 per cent.

There are probably other reasons for this situation in addition to the desire of Americans to enjoy fresh air. The prices of food have declined in greater proportion than have the prices of automotive goods. It is hardly likely that the average consumer is cutting out food in order to buy automobiles.

On the other hand, it is true that many people will deprive themselves of the necessities of life in order to keep up their monthly automobile payments.

At any rate, there you are, the automotive fellows are getting more of the consumer dollar than the food salesman. Judging from the same figures, it costs hardly anything to clothe the American people the average being 6.77 per cent of the dollar.

Somehow it doesn't seem half so important right now to decide where the money is going as it does to decide where it is coming from.

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Low taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

The Evening Story

BLACK RAINBOW

By LILLIAN MITCHELL

"I wish," panted Rosanne, struggling to loosen the lug, "that your passion for antiques hadn't run to the lengths of buying this old car!"

Mary laughed comfortably. "You hadn't struggled with lugs! Oh, now, sis—don't that!"

Rosanne growled. "And I believe you wanted this trip to New Mexico more than you wanted to buy antiques for the shop."

Mary nodded. "I had a hunch. I feel as if we might find our rainbow out of gold down here, Rosanne."

Rosanne sniffed. "The only rainbow I see is that arch of black smoke over there—black rainbow, I'd call it!"

"Black or gold, I don't quarrel about its color," Mary said calmly. "What I'm looking for is a rainbow—and there it is. Run over there like a deer and see if there isn't a man near the campfire which must be underneath that smoke. If there's a man, he'll turn the lug and we can drive on our way."

Rosanne held no such high hopes about the man. Mary, a widow now for fifteen years, thought all men as chivalrous as her dead Tom. Rosanne, the black rainbow in her eyes, thought most men as anything connected with the word "man." Because their relationship was more that of mother and daughter than sisters, however, Rosanne dutifully "ran" toward the smoke.

The tall, broad-shouldered young fellow before the fire started to rise. Then he sank back. Rosanne flushed.

"Excuse my not rising," he told her, with a laugh. "But as the well-known advertisement runs, 'There's a reason.' I'm better off as I am—sitting."

"There's not much use of my staying, then," Rosanne told him. "We have a wheel that won't come off and my sister thought that if there was a man here he would loosen it."

"Your sister thought that, eh?" he said. "And you—you didn't? Well, lend me a shawl or something and I'll loosen the wheel. I slid down a rock and in the back my attire is not correct, according to the best camping standards."

As he changed the tire, they chatted as strangers will. They learned that his name was Mark Pendleton from the near-by ranch.

"Why the shawl, Mark?" called a man from a passing car.

Mark explained his torn trousers.

"Mrs. Pendleton has an afternoon's job," laughed the man.

Rosanne shot a swift glance at Mark. He hadn't mentioned a wife at the ranch. She wondered miserably why the fact that there was a Mrs. Pendleton should trouble her about a man she had known less than an hour.

"Stop at our ranch for luncheon and I'll have a man repair this tire for you," Mark told them. "And while they fix the car up Miss Mary can talk antiques to my mother. Mother is an antique fiend and she can give you good pointers on places to pick up bargains. She has an original bayeta woven from Turkish serge."

Rosanne would have rather gone right along without stopping at the Pendleton ranch. She would rather not see this young man with his wild hair and his wild eyes. In all her young life she had never seen a man who "struck" her so between the eyes, she told herself. And yet when she heard Mary saying they would enjoy an hour at the ranch, Rosanne felt strangely glad!

The white-haired Mrs. Pendleton and Mary fell into immediate conversation about wagon wheels, ancient Spanish chests and an old santo. Rosanne watched for the appearance of young Mr. Pendleton.

Even at luncheon the young Mrs. Pendleton did not appear.

"I'll have some horses around at once," said Mark when the meal was finished. "If you'll ride with me, Miss Rosanne?"

Rosanne lingered in the hallway while he ordered horses.

"It's a real treat to talk with someone who appreciated and understands antiques," Mark's mother was telling Mary in the long living room. "How I wish you could stay here with me for a long, long visit. I—"

Mark was again standing beside Rosanne.

"Isn't Mrs. Pendleton going to ride?"

Mark glanced in the wide doorway. "Mother? Oh, no. Mother never rides except very early in the morning."

"But I meant—your wife?" said Rosanne, hoping the flush that covered her neck and cheeks did not look as rosy as it felt to her. "The man on the road out there mentioned Mrs. Pendleton—mending?"

Mark threw back his head and laughed merrily. "Oh! But he meant mother. Mother is Mrs. Pendleton. I have no wife—yet," he said, the last word coming from his lips so softly that Rosanne wondered afterward if he had really said it at all.

"And now Rosanne began to feel that Mary's hunch about the rainbow being found in New Mexico was a good hunch after all. And the rainbow wasn't a black rainbow at all, but one with the most glorious colors in all the wide world!"

LEARN TO KNOW THE RIGHT WORD

By W. C. Nicholson

A FEW QUESTIONS

A few questions have been received from G. W. Keels of Florence, S. C.:

"Will you please inform me covering the following questions:

"1. Classify the adjective 'what' in the following sentence: 'What fools these mortals be!'

"2. Analyze this sentence: 'It is a good thing for him to have to work.'

"3. Tell the construction of 'him' and 'business' in the sentence, 'I asked him his business.'

"4. The construction of 'brother' in these sentences: 'He was thought him to be my brother.' 'I thought him to be my brother.'

"What is an interrogative adjective used in an exclamatory sentence?"

The subject of the second sentence is "it." The predicate-verb is "is," and the predicate-noun complement is "thing." For him to have to work is a compound phrase modifying the adjective "good." The object of "for" is the infinitive phrase "him to have to work."

"Him" is the subject of this infinitive phrase, and the infinitive "to work" is the object of the infinitive "to have."

In the third sentence, "him" is the indirect object, and "business" is elliptical; as, I asked (of) him (to tell me the nature of) his business. Or "him" might be considered the subject of the infinitive understood.

"Brother" is the complement (nominative) of "to be" in the first sentence. It is also the complement of "be" in the second sentence, but is in the objective case, considered the subject of the infinitive understood.

A Thought for Today

By JOHN CARLYLE

LUXURY ADDICTS

Henry D. Thoreau, who did very deep and incisive thinking and wrote forceful and intelligent prose, was hardly a luxury addict.

He spent a great deal of his time in a tiny shack on the banks of Walden Pond, chopping down trees to keep himself in condition, and making an intensive study of the wild life that he found around him.

In one of his essays he wrote: "Most of the luxuries, and many of the so-called comforts of life are not only indispensable, but positive hindrances to the elevation of mankind."

Few people today would care to live as Thoreau did, in a tiny shack and on plain fare and most of the time at war with conventionality and stupidity.

But it would unquestionably be better for most of us if we lived without luxury at least long enough to know that it is not indispensable.

The desire of a parent who has spent a youth of poverty to save his children from it has done much to fill the world with idle or lazy people.

The good things of life are pleasant and enjoyable. I would be the last to denounce those who make use of them.

But nevertheless the luxury addict, who thinks of nothing but his own ease and pleasure, is a detriment to any community in which he lives.

Moreover, he is always unhappy, for possessing everything that money can buy, he begins to desire things that cannot be bought, like respect and distinction, and these are not to be acquired, as luxuries are, by paying for them in cash.

I believe that enjoyment should be a part of every life, and I am sure that I live in a time when a motor car and the possibilities of travel are not beyond the reach of the average man.

But if the average man begins to indulge in these things too luxuriously, he will soon deprive himself of a still greater source of enjoyment, which is pleasure in his work, and the ability to make progress with it.

Fortunately many of the men who have acquired great wealth have seen fit to devote it to the endowment of educational institutions and hospitals and the like, and thus, perhaps, have done much good in the world as such hermit philosophers as Thoreau.

But they are exceptions. Everywhere around we see evidences of a luxury craving which not only does its victim no good, but inspires others with futile longings for wealth which they never can possess, and thus irritates and embitters them.

If you are working for wealth with the idea that the luxury it will bring will make you happy, you had better stop working for it.

Only a genius can bear up successfully under the weight of a fortune and still be of any value in the world.

And though the kind of people who think that luxury is the only thing to desire in the world are born at the rate of one every minute, a genius comes along once in a number of years.

CANZONERI ADMINISTRATORS SOUND BEATING TO BERG

ITALIAN ALMOST STOPS BRITISHER IN FIRST ROUND

Champion Proves His Right to Purple Robes of Class

By LES CONKLIN
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK—The shoes of Frank Egan, the 135 lb. champion, were not too big today for Tony Canzoneri, worthy champion of the lightweight division.

The likeable little Italian, holder of the 135 lb. and 140 lb. titles and former bantamweight champion, proved his right to the purple robes last night when he administered a sound beating to Jack (Kid) Berg, Britain's best, in the third and "rubber" meeting between the two rivals.

Canzoneri had all the attributes of a real champion—punching power, boxing ability, judgment of pace and stamina. The British brawler, burned out by strenuous campaigning, was outclassed from every angle. The champion was expected to retain his title, but he was the favorite at odds varying from 12 to 5 to 3 to 1—but had been figured to win via the knockout route. Berg, who throws an average of 150 punches a round, had been conceded an excellent chance to win the decision if he would escape a knockout.

Briton's Plan Altered
The Briton's plan of pursuing his usual boring-in tactics, however, were altered in the very first round when the champion almost won by a knockout.
He went after Jackie' had left eye right from the start and soon opened a deep cut over the damaged optic. A left hook to the chin, followed by two rights, dropped Berg for a count of eight.

This knockout coupled with the memory of his knockout by Tony in the third round at Chicago last April, made Berg overcautious and thereafter he seldom took in with his usual fury.
Canzoneri won nine of the fifteen rounds, Berg took three and three were even. The decision was unanimous. But at the end of eight rounds, it was anybody's fight.
Tony Conserves Strength
Unable to knock out the Englishman in the first three rounds as he had planned, Tony began to conserve his strength for the fifteen-round grudge. He loathed through the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds. Berg resumed his characteristic, tireless attack, winning the fourth and fifth heats and getting an even break in the sixth.
Canzoneri stepped on the gas in the seventh round and had Jackie in distress with a succession of wicked left hooks to the head and body. But in the eighth round, he was guilty of a palpably poor punch. A left hook below the belt, that would have cost him his title under the old rules. As it was, he lost the round.

Thereafter the champion's superior stamina—which surprised those who expected Berg to make a strong finish—carried him to a decisive victory. The challenger failed to win a round after the eighth, although he staged sporadic rallies in the tenth and fourteenth sessions to gain an even break. Tony took everything Berg had in the last round and then made John Berg's boy back up. He had regulated his pace to a nicety.

Show Financial Blow
Financially the show was a blow to both Canzoneri and to Madison Square Garden, which promoted it. Instead of 40,000, as anticipated, the attendance was less than 20,000. The receipts were estimated unofficially at $50,000. The record low price scale—$5.74 was tops—did not bring out the fans as had been expected.

Canzoneri could have netted $30,000 for his end if the bout had been held in London as originally scheduled. Instead, he took 27 1-2 per cent of the net receipts last night, and lost plenty by the switch.
Tony weighed only 131 3-4 lbs, obviously weakened by the effort of taking off nearly six pounds, tipped the scales at 134 1-2.

Barton, rookie outfielder of the Cubs, is one of the few Canadians in the game. Jack Dunn of Baltimore signed him off the sandlots of Toronto.

New Football Not Met With Favor by Iowa Squad Coach

IOWA CITY—(INS)—The new eight sectioned football was met with disfavor here today by Coach Burt Ingwersen of the University of Iowa football team.

"The Iowa men, with a few of his athletes who have already arrived on the campus, took the newly fashioned oval down onto the practice field and gave it a fair trial, returning with a 'thumbs down' attitude."

"The ball would be O. K. for an expert passer or an excellent kicker but would only hamper the average player," Coach Ingwersen asserted.

LINDSTROM GETS BY AT SECOND AS GIANTS WIN, 6-1

By COPELAND C. BURG
(INS Sports Writer)

New York—Having proved to the world he could make an outfielder out of a third baseman or an old horse blanket, John McGraw of the New York Giants served notice today he would continue his noble experiment.

McGraw played Freddie Lindstrom at second base in Pittsburgh yesterday and if Hughie Critz's sore arm continues that way, Lindstrom will be a regular fixture at the keystone in 1932. The Giant's manager defied his critics when he made an outfielder out of Lindstrom and he now proposes to challenge the good still further by using Freddie at second.

Lindstrom gets by at that. Suffering from a broken bone in his right leg, Freddie was playing his first game yesterday since July 9. Hobbling around for six innings, he got away with two putouts and two assists, made one wild throw and marked up a hit. Carl Hubbell let the Pirates down with four hits and the New Yorkers won, 6 to 1.
Bill Hallahan served almost perfect ball and the St. Louis Cardinals maintained their seven-game lead in the National league as they flipped Boston, 7 to 3. Bottomley homered for the Cards.
Cuyler and Harnett, with four hits each, captured the Phillies a 17 to 4 victory over the Phillies. It was the first win after nine defeats for the Cubs.
Brooklyn was able to score only one run off 11 hits and Red Lucas and the Cincy Reds snatched it, 5 to 1.

Earnshaw Wins 19th
George Earnshaw scored his nineteenth success, defeating St. Louis for the Athletics, 6 to 3. Goslin homered for the Browns with two on.

Hadley gave Cleveland 12 hits but staggered to a 5 to 3 advantage for Washington.
Six-hit hurling by Tommy Bridges returned Detroit 3 to 0 victors over the St. Louis Browns. Alexander homered for the winners.

Four of 10 Clubs in Pro Loop Set for Initial Games

COLUMBUS, O.—(INS)—Four of the ten clubs comprising the National Football League will inaugurate the 1931 season on Sunday, Sept. 13. The remaining teams will swing into action as soon as the baseball season has been closed at the parks where several of the grid games are played.
The race for the 1931 championship will be brought to a close on Dec. 12.
Green Bay, which has won the title for the past two years, has been conceded a good chance of repeating a third time by dopesters of the professional game. With the addition of new men, other teams in the league are expected to furnish keen competition for the Green Bay aggregation and possibly force the champions out of the running.
Cleveland in Again
Cleveland, after an absence of two years, has re-entered the league and will play its home games this fall in the new $3,000,000 lakefront stadium.
The complete schedule of the league follows:

Ingwersen Begins Planning Ways to Upset Pittsburgh

IOWA CITY—(INS)—Coach Burton A. Ingwersen was beginning to plan ways today to stop Pittsburgh, his first rival for the 1931 season, here Oct. 3.

The Panthers, with three seniors and a junior, all veterans, in the backfield, employ the use of double and triple passes in their offense. The veteran backfield last year was particularly efficient at execution of such play.
The Pitt outfit began practice on offense early this week and will be seasoned with a practice game with Miami college of Oxford, O., Sept. 26.

DEMPSEY TAKES THINGS EASY IN SHOW AT TACOMA

Ex-Champ Apparently Favors Sore Hands in Five Bouts

TACOMA, Wash.—(INS)—Apparently nursing a pair of sore hands, Jack Dempsey, former heavy weight champion, failed to cut loose here last night when he boxed five rounds against four northwest fighters. With Dempsey taking things easily none of his opponents were knocked out or even down.
"Marine" Ranieri was the first opponent to be thrown in the ring with Jac. Ranieri was so busy guarding himself that he failed to land a single blow.
Jack took on George Rickard, Tacoma, for two rounds in the next bout. Rickard landed several stiff blows but was slowed up to a walk by a salvo of left hooks.
Cyclone Thompson, Yakima, succeeded in opening an old cut over Jack's eye in the one round they boxed.
Wayne Pitts, local heavyweight, landed several blows to Jack's head and chin, but faded when Dempsey opened up on him.
Approximately 7,500 fans paid about $10,000 to see the former champion in action.

Results yesterday were:
Fifth round—Ellsworth Vines defeated Berkeley Bell, 6-1, 5-4, 8-6; Frederick J. Perry defeated Frank Bowden, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4; John Hope Doeg defeated Frank Shields, 6-2, 11-9, 4-6, 8-6; George M. Lott Jr. defeated John Van Ryn, 5-7, 1-6, 6-0, 7-5, 6-1.

Dec. 6—New York at Brooklyn.
Green Bay at Chicago Bears.
Cleveland at Portsmouth. Dec. 13—Green Bay at Portsmouth.

Medical Autocracy Is Goal Of Commercialized Medics

The sole reason for the stream of propaganda that pours from our so-called health boards in an endeavor to force preventive medicine upon the people is to bring an immense amount of practice to the doctors of the community and sell an immense amount of serums and vaccines, according to Dr. Herbert M. Shelton in The Quest. He states that the propaganda carried on by these institutions and interests is no more reliable than the propaganda that flooded this country from 1914 on. It is made up of exaggerations, half truths, deliberate falsehoods, inexcusable ignorance, gross superstition, and greed for power and gold. It would be laughable were it not so serious, the advice which is given for the public benefit which would send the people to the family doctor. If it really benefited the public, it would injure the doctor's trade. Health boards are not going to injure their own profession, not by any means. Health boards are devoted to the interests of organized medicine. If any one has any doubt about the commercial aspect behind the motives of state health officers, that doubt should be definitely settled once and for all by the following advice given by Matthew Pfeifferberger, M. D., President of the Illinois State Medical Society whose attitude is typical of health officials holding public office, whether that office be National, State, County or City. His advice, which is quoted here, was intended only for the medical men who had gathered on this occasion in order to promote better cooperation and better co-ordination between medical health officials and members of the State Medical Society in their respective functions, especially in the administration of public health measures. Dr. Pfeifferberger spoke in regard to "Preventive Medicine" and stated that "Prevention practiced to its utmost will create more work for the physician and not diminish it, for the fulltime health officer will be educating his community constantly. There will be more vaccination, more immunizing, more consulting and more frequent use of the physician. His services would be increased many fold."

In this confidential talk, he said further: "I am informed that epidemic and endemic infections cause only 12 per cent of all deaths, and that this percentage is declining very rapidly. Only 15 per cent of all children would ever get diphtheria, even under epidemic conditions, while 100 per cent are prospects for toxin-antitoxin. The percentage who would ever get smallpox under present time conditions is even less, but 100 per cent are prospects for vaccination. Scarlet fever will soon come in for its 100 per cent also, as it may for measles, judging from the reports on that disease. Typhoid fever is disappearing, due to sanitation, but vaccination should be used when the individual travels into unknown territory and countries."

Is a more callous disregard for the health and life of the victims of the health boards conceivable? They have the unkindness of nerve to call "prevention" that which increases the work of doctors! The doctors will get more money out of you as a result of the work of the health boards. Then, too, there is the numerous serious and lasting consequences which often develop from polluting the blood stream with vaccine virus. This also would make more work for the doctor. During the World War people used to about "To Hell with Autocracy," but we have a much worse brand of autocracy in this country today than anything which confronted the people at that time, and conditions are not improving. Such Acts of Congress as the Ransdell Act, with its companion bill, creating the National Institute of Health, place the administration of the public health directly under the control and supervision of organized medicine together with enormous appropriations ($10,000,000.00) which will naturally be used in furthering the ends of medical autocracy and promoting the interests and business of the serum and vaccine manufacturers regardless of the frightful toll in lives, especially the lives of children who will be the principal victims of these nostrums of the medical trust, because there is certain to be serious results in a large number of cases when inoculations are carried out on a large scale, often fatalities occur immediately following this process of blood pollution.

This medical autocracy is not a menace that may come upon us sometime in the future but it is here upon us right now. Medical autocracy of the Allopathic brand is a far greater menace and a greater curse than all other autocracies that ever existed or ever threatened the people of this country. Many of the foreign countries, among them Germany and England, abolished compulsory vaccination and inoculation when the dreadful results were realized.

Preventive medicine is doing increasing damage to the health of the nation each year as it is carried out more extensively and more intensively. For year the medical trust has been perfecting its organization with the definite ultimate aim of dominating as an autocrat in all matters of health and health administration. Unless checked the Allopathy will have an absolute monopoly on the healing art. Preventive medicine will be forced upon the public. Individual liberty will be ignored to an even greater extent than it is at present. Health education which is not dominated or censored by organized medicine is necessary in order to successfully combat the insidious and increasing power of the medical trust. When there is an awakening on the part of the public to the serious menace of organized medicine to individual liberty, drastic steps will be taken to correct the evils of preventive medicine which are now practiced in the interests of commercialized state medicine.

FIND PREHISTORIC GRAVES
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (INS) — Early this year two Madison County farmers started to level a hill on their farm and discovered it contained numerous graves. Around East St. Louis the great Cahokia group of more than thirty tremendous mounds, containing millions of cubic feet of dirt, clearly indicate according to scientists that here was the center of a numerous prehistoric habitation. These people, it is evinced by a wealth of relics gathered by curiosity seekers and scientists, traded far and wide, from the eastern Alleghenies to the Rockies of the West, from the frozen North to the Gulf of Mexico.

Ben Ogden has signed to coach cross country and track another year at Temple. He has been coach since 1928.

Sunday School Lesson

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 13

Some Missionary Experiences

LESSON TEXT—Acts 14:1-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are they which are persecuted for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Some Missionary Adventures.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Some Missionary Adventures.

TOPIC—Hardships of Missionaries.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity Facing Other Religions.

I. Paul and Barnabas Preaching at Iconium (vv. 1-7).
Their experience here was much the same as at Antioch. They entered the Jewish synagogue and preached, causing a multitude of Jews and Gentiles to believe. The unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles to the most bitter opposition. Concerning their work in Iconium observe:

1. Their manner of preaching (v. 1). They "so spake" that a great multitude believed. They were true preachers. Only that which brings conviction of sin and induces decisions for Christ can be truly said to be preaching in the biblical sense. It is not enough merely to bring the truth to the people. It must be brought in such a way that men and women will be induced to decide for Christ.

2. Their attitude toward opposition (v. 3). This is suggested by the word "therefore." "Long time therefore they tarried." The opposition did not prevent their preaching but incited them to continue preaching. Christian workers should not give up work because of opposition.

3. Their preaching accompanied with miracles (v. 3). Since the opposition was so fierce the Lord granted special help in his vindication of their testimony.

4. The effect of their preaching (v. 4). The multitude of the city was divided. Where men faithfully preach the gospel there will be division.

5. Paul and Barnabas assaulted (vv. 5-7). The Jews and the Gentiles united in this assault. Being apprised of this effort, Paul and Barnabas fled to Lystra and Derby, where they preached the gospel.

6. An Attempt to Worship Paul and Barnabas as Gods (vv. 8-18). The occasion (vv. 8-10). It was the healing of a lame man. God's gracious power shown in healing this lame man occasioned new difficulty. That which ought to have been a help was turned into a hindrance. This was a notable miracle. The man had never walked. On hearing Paul preach, faith was born in his heart (Rom. 10:17). When Paul perceived that he trusted Christ, he called with a loud voice that all could hear for the man to stand upright. The cure was instantaneous, for he leaped up and walked (v. 10).

7. The method (vv. 11-13). They called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercurius because he was the chief speaker. The priest of Jupiter brought oxen and garlands ready to offer sacrifices unto these men (v.

13). In the person of Jesus Christ God has actually appeared to man (John 1:14; Phil. 2:7-8).

8. Their efforts frustrated (vv. 14-18). This foolish act was happily averted by the tact of the apostles as exhibited in the address of the occasion.

a. They denied that they were divine beings.

b. They directed them to turn away from the vain things unto the living God who made heaven and earth.

III. The Stoning of Paul (vv. 19-22).
Wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium pursued Paul with relentless hate to this place where they stirred up the very people who had been willing to worship them a short time before. This shows that satanic worship can soon be turned into satanic hate. This hatred took form in the stoning of Paul and the dragging of him out of the city for dead. Having been raised up by God, he with undaunted courage pressed on with his duties as a missionary bearing the good tidings to the lost. Soon after this, Paul turned back and revisited the places where he had preached, telling them that through great tribulation they must enter into the Kingdom of God.

IV. The Organization of Churches in the Field (vv. 23-28).
Evangelization with Paul did not mean a hasty and superficial preaching of the gospel, but the establishment of a permanent work. Elders were appointed in every church. The work of the missionary is not done until there is established on the field self-governing and self-propagating churches.

Christ's Coming
My friends, all the singing about it in the world will not bring the coming of Christ a day nearer—and there are no songs of the Christian church which so fill my heart with gladness and my eyes with tears as the songs of Christ's coming. But service will. — J. Stuart Holden.

Evolution of Transportation Parade Features Second Day of L. A. Fiesta

Early Vintage Autos on Parade in Los Angeles Fiesta

Led by an Oldsmobile of 1902 vintage, these old time autos played prominent part in the "evolution of transportation" parade which featured the second day's activities of the Los Angeles 150th birthday fiesta. Throngs on curb gave the "pioneer" motor cars a great big hand as they rattled by. Almee Semple McPherson (at right), who viewed the procession from the air, is waving to camera after coming back to earth.

Army Gridders Limber Up

As hundreds of hopefuls, eager for a berth on the Army eleven, worked out on the gridiron at United States Military Academy at West Point, regulars staged limbering up drill in corner of the field. Here Bryan Bunch, halfback, nimbly evades Edward Burke, tackle.

Evolution of transportation was depicted in novel parade which featured the second day of the Los Angeles fiesta, which marks the city's 150th birthday. Memories of by-gone days were awakened in the minds of old timers as this 1880 horse-car creaked by in tow of old dobbie.
